EX-BREMEN TWP. SUPERVISOR GETS JAIL SENTENCE

Otto Ziebell, supervisor of Bremen township for 25 years, was sentenced last Friday in Cook Co., Criminal court to six months in the county jail and fined $200 for conspiring to plunder the township relief funds of a sum estimated by the state, at $25,000.

Judge Walter J. La Buy imposed sentence in accord with a jury verdict returned April 22.

In view of the jury's recommendation for leniency, Judge La Buy said, he sentenced Ziebell to half the maximum punishment. Ziebell was found guilty on a misdemeanor count in the indictment which charged conspiracy to defraud.

He was granted his freedom on bond until June 16 and his attorney announced an appeal would be taken. Julius Sherwin, an assistant state's attorney, then obtained a 30 day continuance of two forgery indictments, to await the result of a new audit.

A similar continuance was granted James F. Bennette, the township bookkeeper and co-defendant with Ziebell, who pleaded guilty and testified as a state's witness. A third defendant, Thomas Gregory Herndon, a Midlothian grocer, obtained a separate trial.

MOKENA FALL FESTIVAL DATES AUG. 22, 23, 24

At the meeting of the Mokena Civic Club Monday evening it was voted to advance the dates of the annual Mokena Home Coming and Fall Festival from the latter part of September to the 22nd, 23rd, 24th of August. The new dates it is hoped, will run into warm nights. By holding the affair in late September the nights are too cold and damp.

Plans are being laid for a bigger and better Home Coming ever held here.

A very large number of the Civic group's membership was present on Monday night and took keen interest in the meeting.

The association agreed to sponsor the re-registration of the Scout cubs. Reports were made that dissection has arisen in the regular Scout troop and members of the grievance committee are to investigate the cause and seek a remedy for it.

Reports were made on the Memorial Day program which the Association is sponsoring with a committee consisting of Wm. Semmler, chairman, R. A. Bechstein and Arthur Shoop in charge.

N. F. Heiman gave a highly interesting and illuminating talk on the evolution of the heating business in the past forty years.

A nominating committee was appointed to name the candidates for the various offices of the Association to be voted for in June.

NOTED MOKENA COUPLE

ATTEND PASSION PLAY

Dear Editor:

When I thought of visiting the American Passion Play at Bloomington, Illinois I had considered that after 18 years the production had been thoroughly patronized and that Mrs. Hall and myself were perhaps among the very few who had not seen it presented. So we journeyed to Bloomington and found the house sold out, but our party were splendidly cared for and aside from the treatment accorded us, we became interested in the Passion Play as a real factor in Illinois affairs and after diligent inquiry we were made aware of the fact that there were many of our friends who had not availed themselves of the opportunity to attend. There were only 8 productions of the presentation each year and I find that the people of the state were not aware of the depth and sincerity of the production. The producer, Mr. D. Darrah is a man not necessarily skilled in dramatic work, but of the highest intellectual character and has been at the head of the work from its inception. His personnel of cast are not actors, except as to natural ability. They are natives of Bloomington and enter into the production absolutely without remuneration, 264 of them in presenting the play and handling the 52 beautiful scenes. A grand cast, a sublime production. There is one more presentation of the Play this year, Sunday, May 25th. See it if you can, if not, make it a special effort for next year. Mrs. Hall and I expect to be there again.

Fraternally,
COL. DON C. HALL.

Infantrymen Continue to Hold Vital Place In America's Modern Streamlined Army

By RALPH D. G. NEWMAN
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

NEW YORK. — Despite the current military vogue for Panzer columns, dive-bombers, and fifth-columnists, the heart and backbone of every modern army is still that man of many battles — the infantryman.

The fifth-column can demoralize, the dive-bomber can terrorize, the Panzer column can knock out, but only the infantry can hold on to dear mother earth.

Now it's a new kind of infantry — streamlined, modernized, motorized, flexible, and specialized; and what I saw in my recent 6,000-mile tour of U. S. army posts indicates that the stress on infantry cannot be minimized without injuring an army's force.

The old familiar pattern of infantry is simple: a closed column of troops shouldering rifles and marching behind the commander, with a few horse-drawn guns and supply wagons bringing up the rear. But today a mere list of units and specialists in a typical U. S. infantry division would fill a newspaper column. A catalog of division equipment would fill another column. And that does not take into consideration that in actual combat the infantry co-ordinates with the air force, the armored force, and other specialized units.

Three Combat Teams.

After studies and field tests, U. S. infantry officers ordained the new-type "triangular" division, divided into three combat teams. Each team consists of an infantry regiment supported by its own artillery, engineer, medical, ordnance, and communications units. The combat teams function independently or in concert.

At Fort Sam Houston, Texas, I witnessed alongside high officers of the army, a review of the famous Second division whose field work since 1937 provided the war department with data on which to base the pattern of a triangular division. Tanned and toughened by outdoor life, the division's 13,500 men and 560 officers marched and rode before Gen. John J. Pershing and Gen. H. J. Brees, commander of the Third army, with 1,800 trucks, 267 trailers, 175 motorcycles, 16 scout cars, besides 36 105-mm howitzers, 12 155-mm howitzers, eight anti-tank guns, and numerous mortars. The full division carried 7,199 45-caliber pistols, 6,942 30-caliber rifles, 375 Browning automatics, 35 submachine guns, 292 light and heavy machine guns, etc.

This fighting Second, which won more decorations than any other American division in World War I, is now the model for other triangular divisions.

2,600 Motor Vehicles.

But the U. S. infantry has already gone beyond the triangular division described above. At Fort Benning, Ga., Gen. Lloyd R. Fredendall commands the streamlined, motorized triangular Fourth division, which sets a new high for infantry fire-power and mobility. The Fourth "rolls on rubber," and in field maneuvers it covers 200 to 300 miles per day in 2,600 motor vehicles of all kinds, giving this fighting force the greatest speed, mobility, and fire-power of any infantry division in existence; and by virtue of this fact it is like the new First armored division, the model around which other divisions are being patterned.

Field tests show that a motorized infantry division arrives at a front-line position much fresher than Perfect co-ordination is the "secret" of our modernized army's tremendous striking power. Despite the rapid development of aviation and tanks, the infantryman is still the "backbone" of the army. Motorized, and armed with the Garand rifle, he is far more potent than ever before.

troops who have marched for miles, and they can, therefore, hold tenaciously to gains made by the rapid-advancing armored forces.

In order to get a bird's-eye view of how a motorized division "rolls on rubber," I flew over a bit of terrain near Fort Benning in an army three-place observation plane piloted by Lieut. J. D. Motyl, of the Ninety-seventh observation squadron.

Sitting on a parachute, in the rear gunner's seat, and facing the plane rudder, with my back to the pilot, we flew over patches of Georgia's red earth and green forest to a point about 30 miles from Benning where Pilot Motyl called my attention to what seemed an endless column of trucks, motorcycles, reconnaissance cars, command cars, armored cars, and guns—all motorized, all rolling on rubber. This particular combat team of the Fourth division stretched for 50 miles along a sinuous highway; hence, in closed single column, a full division of motorized infantry would occupy about 150 miles of roadway. The average daily gasoline consumption for such a force on a 200-mile march is about 50,000 gallons.

The infantry also receives support from all types of aircraft, and if necessary, from the chemical warfare service.

Use Parachute Troops.

The newest addition to the U. S. infantry is a rapidly expanding parachute force of highly-trained and resourceful "blitzers" who can unlimber a machine gun or mortar in a trice and who can harass an enemy behind the lines.

At Fort Sam Houston I watched the army's interesting experiments with air transports for rapid transit of guns and fully-equipped troops. In less than 10 minutes, a dozen men loaded a 37-mm anti-tank gun, weighing more than 900 pounds, and necessary ammunition.

In a matter of weeks, sufficient "blitz-buggies," compact but high-powered "bantam" cars, will be available for all infantry divisions. On four cylinders, these 2,000-pound four-man vehicles travel as fast as a mile per minute, if you can hold on. They climb steep slopes, leap ravines, and if they get mired, the soldiers can lift one end clear.

The standard weapons of a U. S. infantry division give it the best potential fire-power in the world today. The Springfield rifle, which in past battles gave a good account of itself, is rapidly yielding to the superior Garand rifle whose fire-power surpasses that of any similar weapon in Europe today. Trained soldiers fire up to 35 rounds per minute as against 15 rounds with the Springfield.

Another U. S. infantry weapon, the Browning automatic rifle, fires up to 150 rounds per minute.

The 37-mm anti-tank gun fires a high explosive 1.5-pound shell at the rate of 25 rounds per minute.

The 81-mm mortar hurls an 11-pound shell up to 7,500 feet at a rate of 18 rounds per minute.

The Browning 30-caliber machine gun delivers up to 430 rounds per minute.

All in all, there are, besides the rifle and pistol, 11 different medium and small fire weapons in the U. S. infantryman's arsenal, and individually, or together, they give unsurpassed fire-power.

Ancient Disease Still Threatens Men, Livestock

CHICAGO. — The same disease which killed the cave man, and which prompted Moses to lay down the first known laws on meat inspection, is still a serious threat to both animals and man, and a cause of severe losses to livestock producers on American farms today. This disease—anthrax—is one of the oldest germ-borne plagues in existence. The cave man contracted it from the skins of animals which he wore for clothing. It devastated livestock herds in the Holy Land more than 2,000 years ago. For centuries it has taken its toll of livestock, ranging from reindeer in Siberia to sheep and cattle in South Africa.

Live Many Years.

The germs of anthrax are very large compared to other bacteria. In the blood of animals and man they exist in the "vegetative" form—rod-shaped single germs with square ends. Outside the body or after death, the germs form long chains with a central spore. In this form, hardy anthrax bacteria live for years in contaminated soil.

Livestock generally contract the disease from infected soil, from sewage of tanneries, or from the bites of flies that have bitten anthrax-sick animals.

Man ordinarily becomes infected through skinning animals dead of the disease or from handling hides. Human anthrax usually shows up as a malignant carbuncle or huge black boil. The germs may migrate through the blood and lymph streams and produce systemic blood poisoning or "septicemia." Luckily, most cases can be saved if diagnosed early.

In America there are a number of severe anthrax "infection" areas, where farmers and veterinarians are making a valiant fight to overcome the disease and to protect livestock and man from its ravages. According to a survey by the American Foundation for Animal Health, these areas extend from the Mississippi delta country to the Dakotas, and from California to the Southeastern Atlantic states. Nor is the disease confined to these sections alone. Like all serious plagues, it sometimes appears unexpectedly in areas far removed from its source.

U. S. navy's scouting Nazi raiders of great aid to Britain... Washington analyzes 'basic' commodities with view to reducing non-defense spending.
(Bell Syndicate—WNU Service.)

WASHINGTON.—War with binoculars, instead of guns, is one way that appeals to President Roosevelt in describing the 2,000-mile patrol—the fact that American warcraft will patrol the Atlantic to a distance of 2,000 miles from the American shore and report the presence of any Nazi planes, submarines or raiders they may see.

Its tremendous importance is appreciated by the British. One prominent figure here pointed out that examination of detailed figures of shipping losses discloses that most of the sinkings by submarines and aircraft have occurred on the British side of an imaginary line down the Atlantic halfway between the two shores, whereas most of the sinkings by raiders were on the American side of that line. He also pointed out that location of raiders presents a much more difficult problem than location of submarines.

News of raiders' sinkings does not usually reach the admiralty until days or weeks after the event, sometimes longer than that. Most of the raiders are fast, and quite capable of being thousands of miles from some scene of any given operation before the British hear of it.

But with American patrols telling the world by wireless every time they see a raider, a comparatively small number of British warships would obviously be much more effective. They would know instantly that a German raider, for example, was at a precise spot. The probable course of the raider in flight from the American patrol could be calculated, and her exact strength would be known. So that if it was a pocket battleship, as in the case of the Graf Spee, a battle cruiser could start in pursuit, whereas if it was a converted merchantman a small cruiser would be ample.

But it might and probably will go further than that. Not only might the American patrol give the location of the raider as of that first moment of sighting it, but it might easily follow the German raider, continuing to give its position.

This task is not as spectacular as it seems to some headline writers, yet it is tremendously important, for there is no doubt that the number of U. S. craft in this "patrol" will be increased constantly so long as any Nazi raiders remain in the Atlantic.

Farm Payments May Be Reduced

It's too soon to begin worrying, if you are a farmer growing wheat, cotton, corn, tobacco or rice, but there is a school of thought which, should it happen to appeal strongly to congress at some stage of this war, may cost all of you, collectively, around a billion dollars a year.

The point is that under the present agricultural policy, about that amount is paid each year to the farmers who grow—or have stopped growing—those "basic" commodities. Actually the word "basic," sound as it may seem to the average citizen, is a bit humorous if one considers money values.

For example, total receipts from cash sales of tobacco were $241,000,000; cotton, $877,000,000; all grains, including wheat, corn, rice, soybeans, rye, barley and oats, only $995,000,000.

But meat animals, not a "basic" agricultural commodity within the meaning of the law, reached nearly $2,500,000,000—more than all the "basic" commodities put together.

Of course, it will occur to any critic that much of this huge sum realized from meat animals was corn and oats and other grains consumed by those animals, and NOT included in the cash sales of the grains. Even with this in mind, however, the figures are rather startling.

Dairy Products Important.

Then there is the fact that dairy products brought in cash sales of more than $1,500,000,000—more than 50 per cent in excess of all grains. Here again, obviously, the cows ate a lot of grain, part of which did not figure in the cash sales.

The fact that cash sale figures are being talked around Washington, in an effort to show that the "basic" agricultural products are a joke, is all the more interesting because of this curious lack of consideration given to the value of grain fed to animals to produce meat or dairy products.

All of which has a bearing on the present tax situation, because sooner or later there is going to be a terrific outcry from the country for non-defense spending to be cut. Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau Jr. has already made some suggestions to congress with respect to the wisdom of cutting some farm payments. Nobody has taken it seriously, so far, but the germ is there, and agitation is at work for a big cut.

U. S. Scientists Develop Automatic Weather Stations

WASHINGTON.—Modern developments in the field of radio transmission have made it possible to devise an automatic weather station capable of unattended operation for periods up to one month—and possibly three months in the future—at isolated locations, such as mountains and islands, according to the U. S. department of commerce.

The aerological division of the bureau of aeronautics, navy department, pioneered in this field. To meet the requirements of the navy aerologists, the national bureau of standards, department of commerce, developed an ingenious but simple transmitting apparatus for use in such stations.

An automatic weather station may be equipped to make and transmit measurements of barometric pressure, ambient temperature and relative humidity, wind velocity and direction, rainfall, and probably other factors.

THE SMOKY YEARS

By ALAN LE MAY W.N.U. Release

INSTALLMENT 11 THE STORY SO FAR:

Dusty King and Lew Gordon had built up a vast string of ranches in the West. King was killed by his powerful and unscrupulous competitor, Ben Thorpe. Bill Roper, King's adopted son, was determined to avenge his death in spite of the opposition

When Lew Gordon spoke, his voice was so quiet that its very stillness carried threat of imminent destruction. "Bill Roper sent a man to you?"

"I didn't say that. He's a man who was with Bill Roper in the Texas Rustlers' War; he doesn't seem to be in the Montana raids."

"Who was it?" Lew Gordon rumbled. "What's his name?"

"Shoshone Wilce."

"Wilce? I know that name. I know it well. I'd rope and drag him in a second, if I caught him talking to you!"

"This man has talked with Ben Thorpe in Dodge," Jody told her father. "A lot of strange news is working down to Thorpe from up here in Montana. Some bands of rustlers are slashing up and down Montana throwing lead and leather into the Thorpe outfits under Lasham; they say he's badly hurt already—nobody will know how badly until the winter breaks."

Her father waited, his eyes angry.

"The word from Dodge explains half the trouble that King-Gordon is up against," Jody said. "Thorpe can't believe that one lone cowboy, deserted by everyone who should have been his friend, could manage to smash his Texas holdings, and go on to cut away his herds in Montana. He thought that we were backing Billy Roper in the Texas Rustlers' War. And he believes that we're backing him now."

"Well?" Lew Gordon said. "You mean to say you came all this way to tell me that?"

"Ben Thorpe means to kill you."

Lew Gordon's face showed no change of expression. But he did not reply at once.

"I don't doubt it," he said at last; "what would you expect? You bring war into a range and anybody is likely to go down."

Jody's face was white.

"You know what's at the bottom of all the trouble we're having," her father said. "You know as well as I do that two years of nothing but trouble lays square at the door of Bill Roper."

Jody sprang up to face him. "I certainly do not know anything of the kind!" she answered him.

Lew Gordon stared at her.

"It's an everlasting shame upon the cow country that Dusty King's killers are still in their saddles. I tell you, Billy Roper is the only man I've seen with courage enough to—"

And now her father angered as she had seldom seen him anger. "You'll tell me nothing!" he roared. "Roper! I'm sick of hearing his name—a dirty outlaw whelp that knows nothing but kill and burn and raid!"

Jody's eyes narrowed and filled with tears. "You may as well know this," she told her father. "The day that Billy Roper dies I want to die too."

For a moment Lew Gordon seemed bewildered; he stared at his daughter as if the devil had come up through the floor. The girl who faced him was entirely strange to him.

He heard her say, "If you had stayed by him, as Dusty King would have done, Thorpe would have been whipped and through, long ago."

"Child," he said queerly, "what are you talking about?"

"If you'd only take Billy Roper back into King-Gordon—"

"That'll never happen while I live," her father said flatly.

A silence fell between them, presently broken by the girl. "He asked me to ride with him once, when he first took the outlaw trail. I wish I had. To the last day I live, I'll wish I'd ridden with him then. And now I'll tell you something more. If ever he asks me again, I'll go."

For several moments he stared at her, more shaken than he had been since the death of Dusty King. Then his face congested, and he rose up on his boot heels to tower over the girl.

"By God," he said, his voice unsteady with the repression he put upon it, "that closes the deal! I've kept my riders off him because of Dusty King, and I let him run on and on, rousing up a range war that has close to busted King-Gordon. But when it comes to tampering with you—it's the end! I'm through, you hear me?"

He caught up his battered sombrero, and his spurs rang as he turned toward the door.

"Dad, what are you going to do?" "Thorpe has a reward on Bill Roper's head. King-Gordon is going to double that reward."

He went storming out, his face black and violent with portent of war.

For several moments Jody Gordon stood motionless where he had left her. Then she turned and went out of the house to the long shed-like stable.

Shoshone Wilce was loitering there in the shadow of the rear wall, an uneasy and restless figure.

"Did you find out where Billy Roper can be reached?" Jody demanded.

of his sweetheart, Jody Gordon, and her father. Daring raids upon Thorpe's Texas holdings wiped him out of the state. Roper then prepared for a great raid upon the vast herds on Thorpe's Montana ranches. Several thousand Indians had gathered near

"Yes, mam, I kind of did, I guess; and I got to be getting on there, Miss Gordon. If you'll just give me any message you want me to take, I'd sure like to be pulling out of here, before—"

"All right. You be here with two good horses just after dark."

"If you could just as leave give me the message now, I'd sure like to—"

"There is no message. I'm going with you to Bill Roper."

Shoshone Wilce looked like a man entrapped. "I can't do it! Your father—I just won't do it, Miss Gordon!"

"All right. I'll make the ride by myself."

"Hey, look! You can't—"

"Bill Roper isn't going to like this, Wilce."

Shoshone studied her searchingly, but found nothing to reassure him. It was in his mind that this girl would do exactly as she said. "My word to you exactly as she said."

"I'd sure like to be pulling out of here, before—" life ain't worth a nickel, either way," he almost whimpered.

"You be here with the horses," Jody said.

She turned and went into the house, leaving Shoshone Wilce standing unhappy and uncertain, ankle deep in the wet snow.

CHAPTER XVI

The rounding up of the wild bunch of riders lost Roper a few days; but within the week Bill Roper and Tex Long rode into the plains of the Little Dry.

Here around a spluttering fire the riders crouched in their sodden blankets, like Indians, while Roper gave out his orders. Thirty-two men and six outlaw leaders were now in the field against Walk Lasham's powerful Montana outfits in the Great Raid.

Roper's first move had been to split his renegade riders into five bunches under the leaders that he knew—Tex Long, Lee Harnish, Dave Shannon, Dry Camp Pierce and himself. Hat Crick Tommy he sent to Miles City in search of further word from Jody Gordon; Hat Crick would later rejoin Roper as messenger and scout.

It was Roper's plan that he and Tex Long, with twelve men between them, should make the most daring raid of all; a raid upon the big herds which Lasham held between the headwaters of Timber Creek and the Little Dry. Of all the ranges in which the wild bunch was interested, this was the nearest Miles City—the most accessible, the most closely watched, the best protected.

How many cattle he could transfer from this range to the starving Canadian Sioux, Roper did not know; but it was his hope to raise such a conspicuous and stubborn disturbance as would mask the operations of the rest of the wild bunch, and permit Pierce to work unimpeded.

"The fourteen of us will split seven ways," Roper told them now. "I figure Lasham's look-out camp for this range is about twelve miles southeast. We'll comb every way but that way. I'm not telling you how to gather stock. Hunt 'em like you know how to hunt 'em. Move out one day's ride, spotting your cow bunches. Next day pick 'em up and work 'em this way. And on the third day throw your gather against a coulee or something where one man can hold 'em, and the other man of each pair ride back and meet me here. I figure this range is heavy with cattle. I don't see any reason why two good men can't the Canadian border to take every beef that was driven across. Shoshone Wilce, one of Roper's men, told Jody that her father's life was in danger, so she rode to warn him. He was surprised to see her so far from home.

easy throw together three hundred head in a couple of days. That gives us a nice bunch of anyway two thousand. The more the better—but with two thousand we'll make our drive."

They slept that night under the slowly falling snow. Roper himself made coffee and routed out his riders two hours before the first light. They caught their horses in the dark, with hands that fumbled the stiffened ropes; then split off in pairs to comb the range.

For two days Roper watched the enemy camp while the snow held on, piling a deeper and deeper mat; then on the third day he returned to the rendezvous as the roundup men began straggling in.

Tex Long was the first one back.

"This range is plumb solid with stock," Tex declared. "How many head do you figure me and Kid Johnson scraped up, just us two?"

"Well," Roper grunted, "upwards of a dozen—I should hope."

"Better'n six hundred head! Lord Almighty, Bill! Figuring they're worth twenty dollars apiece, and allowing that all the other boys do as good, we're liable to get out of here with around eighty thousand dollars worth of cattle! You realize that?"

But Roper was thinking of the letter in his pocket; the appeal of a girl who needed him in some unknown way, and who did not even know why he couldn't come.

All the next day they worked to throw the little bunches together into a trail herd. Not all of them had done as well as Tex Long and Kid Johnson, but most of them had done well enough. And then, at last, the first herd privateered in the Great Raid began to roll. A long unsteadily moving river of cattle poured northward, a dark welter in the thinning fall of the snow. White-faces, mostly, blocky and heavy, well wintered on the prairie hay—Roper counted two thousand six hundred odd!

Pressed hard by the heavy force of cowboys, the cattle bawled but humped along northward into the valley of the Prairie Elk.

Rounding up within a day's ride of Miles City itself, Roper's men had taken this herd almost out of the very corrals of Lasham's outposts; and yet, so far as any of them knew, that swift-moving drive represented a harder blow than had ever been struck a cattleman in a single raid. In all their months of effort the winter wild bunch had been unable to achieve an equal reprisal upon Lasham, and now they could hardly believe their own success. They forced the cattle hard, driving through the clogging snow at a rate incredible to men accustomed to handling market herds.

The cattle that broke the way through the snow kept dropping back, blown and tired; but as fast as they failed, others were forced forward to take their places. Longhorned, stag-legged steers of the old Texas strain fought the riders, breaking the heavy column repeatedly in their wild-eyed thrusts for liberty, and these were allowed to get away. Gaunt, weak cattle lagged back, unable to keep up even under the snapping rope ends of the tail riders; they also were allowed to drop out, promptly forgotten. Yet, in that first day, the side riders swept in enough north-roaming cattle to more than make up the loss.

Roper went with the herd as far as Circle Horse Creek; but when they had forded the shallows, crashing through the rotten ice, he turned back. With him he took four men who he believed would do what he said. The cattle were moving more slowly now, plodding doggedly through the heavy going; Tex Long and the remaining eight men could hold them to their way. What was needed now was work of a different kind, and Roper thought he knew how that was to be done.

It was his intention to fight a rear guard action—not only for this first herd, which would be delivered within the week to the Indians who would spirit it away, but for the protection of all the rest of the wild bunch raiding to westward.

But now as he neared the head of the Little Dry, a rider came dropping down a long slope upon a racing horse. His carbine was held above his ragged sombrero in sign of peace; and as he came near they saw that it was Hat Crick Tommy.

Roper jumped his horse out to meet Hat Crick. "What is it? Is there any word? Did she—"

Tommy's face was haggard with fatigue. "She's gone!" he jerked out. "She's been to Miles City—and now she's gone!"

"Gone? Gone where?"

"Nobody knows. She's missing—disappeared—strayed or lost or rustled, I don't know which! Her father's wild crazy, and every K-G outfit in the north is combing the trails—"

Roper sat staring for a full half minute. Then his hands fumbled for his reata, shook out the loop.

"Turn that roan pony! I've got to have a fresh horse . . ."

Household Hints

Make an oilcloth cover for your ironing board. Put over cover on ironing board when brushing and sponging garments.

Painting the top and bottom cellar steps white may save many falls.

Most silk lamp shades may be successfully washed with lukewarm soapsuds. Dissolve soap flakes thoroughly before adding them to the water and use a very soft brush to apply the suds to the shade.

Don't keep honey in the refrigerator. It keeps better in the cupboard.

Cotton corduroys look best after laundering if they are not ironed, but are merely brushed along the direction of the ribs while still slightly damp.

Always use bread crumbs to cover articles to be fried. Cracker crumbs absorb the grease.

To remove chocolate stains from table linen, sprinkle the spot with borax and then pour boiling water through the cloth.

Out-of-door pillows, used for the canoe or porch swing, should have an inner covering of oilcloth and an outer one of some attractive cretonne. These will remain uninjured through a rain.

Even Court Ruling Couldn't Make Absent Plaintiff Talk

"I understand that you called on the complainant. Is that so?" demanded a browbeating barrister of a man he was cross-examining. "Yes," replied the witness.

"What did he say?"

"Counsel for the other side objected that evidence as to a conversation was not admissible, and half an hour's argument ensued. Then the court retired to consider the point, announcing some time later that they deemed the question a proper one."

"Well, what did the plaintiff say?" repeated the cross-examining attorney.

"He wasn't at home, sir!" was the answer.

RIVERVIEW PARK IS NOW OPEN

Riverview Park, Chicago's only amusement park and the largest outdoor amusement center in the country, opened its 1941 season May 14.

Park President George A. Schmidt estimates that more than a quarter of a million dollars have been spent to prepare Riverview's 142 acres of rides, shows, picnic groves and attractions for its 38th consecutive season. Over 18,000 gallons of paint alone, was used on the ride and show structures bordering the three mile midway. Landscape gardeners recently finished a month-long task of pruning, trimming and preparing Riverview's beautiful shade trees, shrubbery and flower gardens for the new season.

In the ride and attraction division, Riverview presents the same popular and thrilling attractions as last year. Features of the season will be the twenty story "Pair O'Chutes", the 80 foot double ferris wheel and the coaster rides headed by the world's speediest ride, "The Bobs". Others are "Flying Scooters", "Flying Turns", "Rocket Ships", "Chutes", "Silver Flash", and more than 100 other attractions. The miniature train, "Kiddyland", "Merry Go-Round" and other ground rides are ready and waiting for the scores of youngsters who will enjoy them again this season.

Riverview's popular bargain matinees and evenings will prevail again this season. Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays will be two cent days and Tuesday and Thursday evenings will be five cent nights. As an added feature George Schmidt has made Saturday afternoons two cent days for the children until the city schools close in June.

PASSENGER CAR OF FUTURE
WILL PACE 500-MILE RACE

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind.—The car of year-after-tomorrow will pace the fast field of 33 cars to start the 29th annual 500-mile race at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway on May 30.

Following a long-established custom, one of the outstanding passenger cars of the year is always selected for this honor of herding the cars around the two-and-a-half mile oval racing strip and this year the advanced "Newport" model introduced at both the New York and Chicago automobile shows as the car of the future will set the pace.

The design of this latest example of scientific aerodynamic engineering was developed after many years of study of racing automobiles by the famous automotive engineer, Ralph Roberts, and Chrysler engineers and will be one of the most advanced passenger cars to lead the racing field to the post.

"It is particularly fitting that a car which is years ahead of the current models should be selected to pace the 500-mile race," says T. E. "Pop" Myers, vice-president and general manager of the Indianapolis Motor Speedway in announcing the appointment, "because we feel that the Speedway is the great out-door laboratory of the automotive industry and that our efforts here for 23 years have definitely contributed to the creation of this remarkable automobile."

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES
"Mortals and Immortals" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, May 18.

The Golden Text was, "Forsake the foolish, and live; and go in the way of understanding" (Proverbs 9:8).

Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible: "For as many as are led by the Spirit of God, they are the sons of God. The Spirit itself beareth witness with our spirit, that we are the children of God: And if children, then heirs; heirs of God, and joint-heirs with Christ" (Romans 8:14, 16, 17).

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "Immortal man was and is God's image or idea, even the infinite expression of infinite Mind, and immortal man is coexistent and coeternal with that Mind. He has been forever in the eternal Mind, God; but infinite Mind can never be in man, but is reflected by man. The spiritual man's consciousness and individuality are reflections of God. They are the emanations of Him who is Life, Truth, and Love. Immortal man is not and never was material, but always spiritual and eternal" (p. 386).

PALOS PARK

By Dorothy Robson

The biggest news to hit Palos in a long time is the terrible storm of last Thursday night. Though the wind only lasted about ten minutes it did a lot of damage. Trees were torn out by the roots and cut up like kindling wood. Trees that took years and years to grow and only a minute to destroy. The McCord barn had the top totally ruined, the windmill blown down, chimneys knocked off the house, and trees blown everywhere. The Thomlinson barn and a small cottage being remodeled on Clem Lesicki's farm were twisted. The garage on the John Jedlicka Sr. farm was blown up against the house and did quite a bit of damage. All outside buildings of Gottfried Braasch's were blown to bits. The big barn and windmill and other buildings of Hill top Farm were destroyed. A tree was blown down and sent through the front door of Ed Cowan's house. Bricks were blown out of Eddie Jedlicka's garage and gas station. He was out of electricity all morning and could not pull gas until late in the afternoon. The new home being built by Roha of Chicago was just ready to put the gables up and then the roof and one side was completely ruined almost to the ground. Electricity and telephones were out of commission in every house. Everyone hopes and prays that another storm like that will never come near again.

The Gordon Powell family have gone to spend a few days at the William Beagley farm in Orland. William Beagley was called to Jackson, Minnesota due to the death of his sister, Mrs. Peter Dilly. Our deepest sympathy is extended to the Beagley family.

The Palos Oak Hill Cemetery Association will hold a bake sale on May 24 at the Hobby Shop from 2 to 5.

The Palos Woman's Club will hold a Garden Tour on Thursday afternoon.

The Red Cross Work Class met at the home of the ex-chairman, Mrs. Harry Crowley on Wednesday.

Mrs. Jessie L. Mains has returned home from the Woodlawn hospital in Chicago after her recent eye operation and is getting along splendidly.

Gordon Powell Jr. has just recovered from the measles and Howard Braasch and Jack Jedlicka have now contracted the disease.

Mrs. Gordon Gibbons has the mumps but is improving.

The Palos Juniors will hold a steak fry at the Shelter House on 86th Ave., on Thursday evening. This is a party for the members and prospective members.

Agnes and Janet Weir went to the Augustina hospital in Chicago to see their sister, Mrs. Margaret Walters, who was truck by a car and bruised about the hips and legs. Mrs. Walters was formerly Margaret Weir of Palos.

Mrs. Ada Schmidt has returned home from a week spent at the Englewood hospital in Chicago. She is convalescing nicely.

Happy Birthday Department—
Mrs. Mary Mahaffay celebrated her birthday with a party at her home on Monday evening.

Mrs. Maude Traub was surprised by her family on the date of her birth on Sunday.

The graduating class of the Orland Park High School entertained the play cast and the director, Miss Evelyn Pdiest the past week at a dinner in the Blackstone Hotel in Chicago. Following the dinner the group saw the play "Life With Father."

In spite of wind, rain, thunder and lightning, and measles, the annual school play of the Orland Park High School was presented on three nights, May 15, 16 and 19. The third night was in the nature of a "rain check" performance because of the storm on the night of the first show which caused a shut down of the electric service at the end of the first act.

The play, a three act comedy entitled "Excuse My Dust" was an outstanding success, artistically as well as financially and much credit may be given the capable director, Miss Evelyn Priest.

The cast was made up of the following students: Robert Estand, Howard Braasch, Muriel Morlock, Arthur Beagley, Joyce Town, Joyce Homerding, Lavern Schmaedeke, Virginia Gee, Eleanor Knox, and Robert Hewson. Because an attack of measles had sneaked up on Howard Braasch over the week end, Eugene Uthe substituted for him at the Monday night performance.

Between the acts the audience was entertained by specialty tap dances by Shirley Braasch, songs by June Perry, a trio consisting of June Schuessler, Ruth Gee and Eleanor Cooper and a quartette made up of Margaret Creveling, Betty Yunker and Hilda and Vera Zerbs.

Heiniegabubeler, Famed Barroom Prankster, Dead

Thomas Collier, a former resident of Frankfort, where he operated the hotel now conducted by Joe Priami, was the man who originated a highly copied "patron beware" type of barroom humor, died last Thursday in the Silver Cross hospital, Joliet. He ran the saloon to which Chicagoans of an earlier era took their country cousins for entertainment and surprises. As Heiniegabubeler, a name he coined for himself, he won fame by dispensing practical jokes along with refreshments.

Collier opened his first Heiniegabubeler's saloon at 10 Quincy street during the Columbian Exposition in 1893. In 1910 he moved his saloon and its trick equipment to South State Street near Harrison street. When prohibition came Collier closed his place and retired. He lived with his daughter, Mrs. Ruby Zeman at 904 Park View avenue, Joliet.

Boob-Traps Snared Unwary

A tireless practical joker, Collier fitted out his saloon with all types of mantraps, boob baits and trick furniture to catch the unwary patron. Collier's fame spread throughout the country and he had many imitators.

There were all sorts of funny things at Heiniegabubeler's. There were the stairs to the "museum" that collapsed and slid the patron to the floor when he reached the last step. There were trick glasses and collapsible chairs. The brassy looking bar rail was rubber. When a patron picked up his change from the bar he got an electric shock.

An old style barroom stove, bottom up, hung down from the ceiling. A sprinkling can at the end of the bar was labeled "Chemical company No. 1". Many of the fancy sounding drinks such as "Kill Me Quick" or "Jersey Lightning" turned out to be tea. An innocent looking beer keg in the "art gallery" where there were no chairs, had a floating top that sank in water when the unsuspecting sat on it.

Free Lunch Defied Digestion

"A ring with every drink" read the sign over the dust pan "cash register" and when a patron dropped his money there was the clanking of cowbells. Such "edibles" as hard and soft coal, cheese that turned out to be soap, rubber beads, chopped hay, and oats were on the free lunch counter.

Heiniegabubeler's also was known for its museum of wax figures and the many amusing signs thruout the place.

Mr. Collier was 80 years old. The funeral services were held Sunday afternoon at 2 p. m., in the chapel at 508 Cass street, Joliet with burial in Oak Woods cemetery, Joliet.

Mr. Collier at one time resided on the farm south of Mokena now occupied by Mr. Livens.

MOKENA

Mrs. John Schudt of Mokena was awarded the lunch cloth which Mrs. Gertrude Valentine of Frankfort crocheted. Mrs. Valentine is very grateful to all those who made purchases on this lunch cloth.

Fred Cross of Chicago spent Sunday with his grand daughter, Mrs. Frank Sizer and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Homerding and children of Frankfort and Mr. and Mrs. Martin DeVrees of Blue Island spent Sunday in the Fred Rauch home.

Mr. and Mrs. Norville Schultz of Chicago spent Sunday in the James Egerton home.

Miss Margaret Hennessey, teacher in the Mokena High School, was taken ill while at school last Friday and was rushed to the Silver Cross hospital where she underwent an appendicitis operation that afternoon. She is doing very well.

The Mokena Book Club met last Friday evening in the home of Miss Helen Cappel. Mrs. Ambuehl reviewed the book "Random Harvest."

The Community Chorus members and their families will meet at the Rock Island depot next Monday evening at 6:15 to go to the Messenger Woods in Homer township for a picnic. They are requested to kindly be prompt at the hour stated.

Eighteen women bowlers met in the home of Miss Minnie Groth Tuesday evening to organize teams for next fall playing. Six teams were formed.

Mrs. Chas. Dath and daughters, Florence, Louise and Anita will move from Chicago into their home on Wolf road June first.

Walter G. Olson of Mokena is reported to be getting along fine at the McCleary Clinic in Excelsior Springs, Mo. He is expected to be able to return home in about a week. Excelsior Springs is near Kansas City and is a mineral water resort town.

THORNE AND PETILLO LONG AND SHORT OF RACE DRIVERS

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind.—The long and short of it among the race drivers are lanky Joe Thorne and dumpy little Kelly Petillo. But long or short, they've both got their hearts set on winning the 500-mile race at the Indianapolis Speedway on May 30.

Thorne is a millionaire who is in the game for the sheer love of motors and speed, although he is not averse to hauling down a chunk of prize money when the opportunity offers. A consistent driver himself, Thorne has been finishing better and better every year in the annual motor classic.

Last year he finished fifth, his best position to date.

Besides his own mount, Thorne is expected to have at least one other car in the race.

Petillo, despite his size, or maybe because of it, is one of the most colorful figures in the business. Winner of the 1935 Indianapolis race, he has plenty of "foot" when the chips are down. He moves into turns at terrifying speed and scoots down the straightaways like a newly sprung arrow, all of which makes him a great favorite with the rail birds, win or lose.

BREAD TRICKS APLENTY!
(See Recipes Below)

'BREAD 'N' BUTTER'

Those new loaves of white bread featured on grocery store counters and in bakeries everywhere these days look just like the loaves of white bread you have been buying for years. But they're different—they've been "vitaminized."

"How?" you ask. Through the use of enriched flour—a wheat flour which contains added vitamins and minerals.

It was the Bureau of Home Economics of the United States department of agriculture which suggested, when flour standards here were under discussion, that fortified flour should contain a specified amount of vitamin B1 and of iron, and that nicotinic acid, riboflavin and calcium should be added.

Because American diets lack chiefly B-vitamins and iron, the accent was placed here. The law is that each pound of Enriched Flour must contain at least 1.66 milligrams of thiamin (B1); 6.15 milligrams of nicotinic acid (pellagra-preventing vitamin); and 6.15 milligrams of iron.

So, now in addition to being the most versatile and economical energy-yielding food, bread also provides, in economical form, additional nutrients essential to health.

And, since bread is the one food that probably appears more often than any other on the family menu, I'm going to give you a variety of new and interesting uses for this "health food."

A good sharp knife, a loaf of good baker's bread and your imagination will do wonders in developing, in your own kitchen, delicious creations that make your menus full of new life and interest.

Bread Buttercups.

Remove the crusts from a loaf of uncut bread. Cut lengthwise slices from the loaf. Trim the slices so that they are about 1½ inches wide and the ends pointed. Brush with an egg and milk mixture and arrange in baking cups. It is best to brush the tips with a little melted butter so that they will brown more readily. Bake the bread buttercups in a moderate oven until they are delicately browned.

Pinwheel Sandwiches.

Trim the crusts from a whole loaf of uncut bread; cut in lengthwise slices. Spread the slices with any desired spread of a creamy consistency. Roll the bread firmly the narrow way. Small stuffed olives, nut meats or hard cooked eggs make an attractive center for the roll. The rolls should be tightly wrapped in waxed paper and chilled in the refrigerator before slicing.

Croustades.

Trim crusts from two or three slices of bread, making even-size squares. Remove the centers from all but one slice. Dip in melted

LYNN SAYS:

Do your menus meet nutritive requirements, and appetite appeal, too? Careful, now. Here are 10 points on which to check your meals for appetite appeal:

1. Avoid repeating the same food in one meal.
2. Avoid serving more than one strongly flavored or highly seasoned food in a meal.
3. Avoid using too much of one type of food in a meal—such as spaghetti as a main dish and rice pudding for dessert.
4. Use as much texture contrast as possible—have some soft, some solid, and some crisp food in each meal.
5. Get flavor balance in your menus by serving some sweet, some bland, and some acid foods each meal.
6. Serve some hot and some cold foods each meal.
7. Serve foods whose colors look well together and avoid serving colorless foods in one meal.
8. Try to get contrast in size and shape in the foods served.
9. Serve leftovers in a new form.
10. Avoid serving the same food combinations too often. Serve some other tart fruit with your pork, instead of the stand-by applesauce.

It's Picnic Time

Has winter made you forget the wonderful, carefree afternoons spent along sparkling streams or in sunny meadows, munching hot dogs, dipping into baked beans and ice cream? It's time to plan Sunday excursions and be lazy by eating off paper plates, with paper forks. And next week Lynn Chambers will delve into picnic atmosphere. Watch for her recipes of good things to eat out-of-doors!

butter, and put together to form square cases for creamed food.

Bread Patty Cases.

Cut three rounds of sliced bread. Cut holes in two of them and place on the first slice. Brush with a mixture of egg and milk (1 egg slightly beaten plus ¼ cup of milk) and bake in a moderate oven until brown.

Checkerboard Sandwiches.

Remove the crusts and spread the slices with soft butter, and any sandwich spread of paste consistency. Then, alternating the slices, make two stacks of three slices each—one with a whole wheat slice between two white slices and the other with a white slice between two whole wheat slices. Next, cut the two stacks into half-inch slices. Spread with soft butter and another flavor spread, and alternate them again, making stacks of three-layer slices each. Press the stacks together, wrap each in wax paper and place in icebox to harden the butter. When ready to serve, cut crosswise into thin slices to give the checkerboard effect.

Ribbon Sandwiches.

Remove the crusts from four slices of bread, two white and two whole wheat. Put them together with different fillings, wrap in waxed paper and chill. Cut down through the four layers in thin slices to form a ribbon sandwich.

Try these tricks very soon, won't you?

You'll receive no end of compliments on your ability to prepare these tasty and attractive "bread delights." They are all pictured at the top of the column.

If you're weary of serving the usual type of sandwiches when you entertain, here are "fillers" that will bring such phrases as "May I have your recipe?" from fascinated guests.

Egg Filling.

4 hard cooked eggs
½ cup chopped cooked bacon or ½ cup stuffed olives
Few drops Worcestershire sauce
Cream or salad dressing
Chop eggs, add bacon and Worcestershire sauce. Add enough cream or dressing to give a spreading consistency.

Ripe Olive Filling.

Use one cup ripe olives, minced; one cup finely diced celery; ½ cup minced nut meats, and salad dressing to taste. Combine olives, celery and nutmeats and moisten with dressing, then spread on bread.

Sandwich Loaf.

Trim crusts from a sandwich loaf of bread and cut in four lengthwise slices. Spread each slice with softened butter. For the three different fillings necessary, use any good combinations of flavor and color, such as minced ham and pickle, a yellow cheese mixed with finely-chopped green pepper, chives, parsley or watercress, and chopped tomatoes and cucumbers, or a tuna or salmon mixture. Each of these fillings should be mixed with mayonnaise or softened butter so that it spreads easily. The loaf may be made several hours ahead of time if wrapped in waxed paper and kept in a cool place. Prior to serving, it is iced on top, sides and ends with cream cheese softened to spreading consistency with water, milk or mayonnaise. Garnish with slices of stuffed olive, sprigs of parsley or endive. For serving, cut in thick slices. This loaf will serve 10 to 12 persons.

BROADENING CHRISTIAN HORIZONS: PETER'S VISION

LESSON TEXT—Acts 11:5-18.
GOLDEN TEXT—Then Peter opened his mouth, and said, Of a truth I perceive that God is no respecter of persons.—Acts 10:34.

"The best argument for Christianity is a Christian" (Henry Drummond). Peter presented just such an argument when, early in the history of Christianity, there arose a difference of opinion regarding his ministry to a Gentile and his family. The stumbling stone of offense became a stepping stone to higher things, leading to the place of broader horizons. Peter, instead of appealing to his apostolic authority or asserting his position, simply related what God had done. He presented the best proof that God had actually been at work; namely, a redeemed soul.

We may learn from this lesson that the way to broadened horizons and greater usefulness for the church is by

I. A Vision of God's Plan (vv. 5-10).

All men are equally precious in God's sight. God taught Peter very effectively that, whether Gentile or Jew, the Lord is "not willing that any should perish, but that all should come to repentance" (II Pet. 3:9).

When God speaks we do well to give heed to His message, even though it cuts across our ideas and prejudices, as it often does. It is not our plan that is important; it is God's plan and purpose. As we walk in that way we shall have

II. An Experience of God's Power (vv. 11-15).

The Holy Spirit had fallen on the Gentiles and they actually had been saved. Is it not singular that in the early church they could hardly believe that a Gentile could be saved? Now we are astonished if a Jew is saved! Why will we in our unbelief limit the Holy One of Israel?

The all-powerful gospel of the grace of God is still saving men and women, Jews and Gentiles, from their sins. Have you seen it happen? It is a great inspiration to faith and service. God is ready so to encourage us—He is the same today as He was when He sent Peter to Cornelius. Are we willing to run His errands, proclaim His message? To do so we need

III. An Appreciation of God's Word (v. 16).

The best way to learn the meaning of God's Word is to use it, live it, obey it. "If any man will do his will, he shall know of the doctrine, whether it be of God" (John 7:17). Peter had learned anew that God's Word meant just what it said. We who are God's servants should believe His Word and act on it in faith.

Observe that Cornelius had gathered a group in his household to hear the Word of God (Acts 10:27, 33). Could we not do the same? "Can not each calculate with exactness some time and place where the gospel is to be preached, and is it not possible to bring thither one's relatives and friends? Secondly, when present in a place of worship, can not each be prepared to say, 'We are all here present'—all, family and friends, mind as well as body; 'in the sight of God'—not to be seen by others, not conscious so much of others as of the presence of God; 'to hear all things'—not to be amused or to sleep; 'that have been commanded thee of the Lord'—not to listen to human conjecture or the exploiting of doubts, but to receive a positive message which is delivered in a reverent spirit and with the prophetic formula: 'Thus saith the Lord.' What would happen were all Christian churches filled with such audiences?" (Charles R. Erdman).

This brings us to what is most important of all in broadening our spiritual horizons.

IV. An Understanding of God's Love (vv. 17, 18).

God's love is for all people. Since He has not raised any barriers of race, creed, color, class, or social position, it is not for His followers, and assuredly not for His servants, to set up hindering restrictions which He does not countenance. If God intended to save Gentiles, Peter wanted to be an instrument in His hand, not a hindrance in His way. One of the needs of our day is that those doing God's work should not withstand Him and His love. He who is the same yesterday, today, and forever, is ready to work as powerfully today as He did in the days of Peter and Paul, or of Finney and Moody. Let us give Him liberty to work in and through us, not as we may wish, but as He desires. Who are we that we should withstand God?

Goal of Life

Oh, yet we trust that, somehow, God will be the final goal of ill, That nothing walks with aimless feet, That not one life shall be destroyed, Or cast as rubbish to the void, When God has made the pile complete.—Tennyson.

NEW IDEAS for Home-makers which are screwed to all four sides of the top fit down over the stool. Flowered chintz is used for the top of the cover and a plain 3-inch glazed chintz frill is added repeating one of the tones in the flower pattern. The seam allowance around the cover may be tacked to the removable top of the table and the whole thing may then be folded away in a small space when not in use.

NOTE: You will find directions for remodeling and slip-covering many types of chairs, as well as an out-moded couch in Book 5 of the series of home-making booklets offered with these articles. The new Book 7 contains a number of ways to use slip covers. In it boxes become ottomans; and an old wicker chair is padded and tufted. Each book contains more than thirty useful home-making projects with complete directions for making. Send order to:

SO MANY clever slip cover tricks are being used now that it is possible to transform an entire house with a few yards of gay chintz. Old chairs of all types step right out and become the life of the party in smart new frocks. Even tables and lamp shades are slip-covered but the best trick is to make something out of next to nothing by slip-covering it. A smart coffee table from a camp stool for instance.

Watch Your Kidneys!

Help Them Cleanse the Blood of Harmful Body Waste

Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery.

Symptoms may be nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

There should be no doubt that prompt treatment is wiser than neglect. Use Doan's Pills. Doan's have been winning new friends for more than forty years. They have a nation-wide reputation. Are recommended by grateful people the country over. Ask your neighbor!
